

The Daily Courant.

Friday, March 14. 1707.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated Mar. 18.

Strasbourg, Mar. 7.

PArt of our Foot are drawing together between Schlestadt and Colmar on the River Ill, and the rest below Haguenau on the Sorr. Several Boats and Pontons are sent to Brisac, and 2000 Waggon are expected here to load Provisions and Ammunition. In the mean time 'tis believ'd no Enterprize of any Moment will be undertaken before the Arrival of the Marshal de Villars, who is not expected here till the End of this Month. The Horse is tolerably remounted; but the Foot is in a weak Condition, the Battallions being one with another but 300 Men each. The 5th Instant a Regiment of Carabineers, consisting of 3 Squadrons, which was quarter'd about Phalzbourg, march'd towards the Netherlands: And 'tis rumour'd, that several other Regiments will follow thither; so that in all Appearance we shall not pretend to attempt any thing of Consequence this Campaign in these Parts. The Enemy have drawn together on the other side of the Rhine to observe our Motions; and have reinforc'd the Garrison of Landau to 7000 Men.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Mar. 19.

Heydelberg, Mar. 12. We have no Account that the Enemy's Forces are about to make any Motion yet, except that those which are drawn together near Colmar, are to be employ'd in no worthier an Expedition than the putting under military Execution some Villages in Alsace that have not satisfied certain Demands of the King's Intendant. The Enemy's Troops begin to desert apace. In the mean while, Philipsbourg, Landau, and the Lines are brought into a better State of Defence daily. Most of our Troops are come together, and the Bataves and Wurtembergers are so near at Hand, that they may joyn the rest in 2 or 3 Days. Order is sent to the Hussars in Bavaria to hasten to the Rendezvous on the Rhine, and they are to be follow'd by the Imperial Regiments of Zoblowitz and Mercy: In short, if the Enemy do not receive Reinforcements from the Netherlands or elsewhere, (and there is no Likelihood they will,) they will be in no Condition to act offensively in these Parts.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated March 17.

Mons, Mar. 9. Yesterday arriv'd here 12 or 13 Waggon from Doway, loaded with Powder and other Ammunition, which is laid up in our Storehouse; and the Magazine of Hay is filling with all Expedition. 600 Waggon are summon'd in from the adjacent Country, to fetch Palisadoes from a Wood beyond Binch about 4 Miles from hence, to be us'd in strengthening our Fortifications: And Men are employ'd without the Gate of Bertemont, in making several Works of Fortification, for the better Defence of this City on that side. Men are also kept hard at Work on the Lines behind the Haine. Several Officers with their Equipage are arriv'd here, but no new Forces or Recruits yet, nor Horses to remount the Cavalry. Our Garrison consists at present of 11 Battallions and 6 Squadrons. We hear no more talk of the Elector of Bavaria's going up to Germany, nor of the Spanish and Bavarian Troops marching thither.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated March 18.

Mons, March 14. Yesterday the Carnival was ended, at the Palace of the Elector of Bavaria, with a magnificent Feast and a Ball. His Electoral Highness sets out from hence shortly for Lille, and 'tis talk'd order is given for removing all his best Furniture thither; whence 'tis conjectur'd his said Highness does not think himself safe in this Place. A great Number of Men are kept very hard at Work on the new Lines; but the Ground being low and marshy in some Places, that Work goes on but heavily.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Mar. 17.

Brussels, Mar. 14. Two Days ago a new Regiment of Horse rais'd by the Marquis of Westerloo, pass'd in Review before the Deputies of the States of Brabant. 'Tis said an Edict is drawn up, to enjoin all Natives of France, even those that are settled Housekeepers, to depart this Province; and that it will be publish'd as soon as Mr. Stepney and the States Deputies arrive here. Many Vessels come daily up our Canal, loaded with Hay for the great Magazines that are provided here for the Campaign. The Advices from the Frontiers tell us the Enemy are very busy in storing their Magazines in Namur, Maubenge, Mons, Conde, and Valenciennes, and in strengthening the Fortifications of Charleroy and Mons, which they are apprehensive will be besieg'd the ensuing Campaign: Great Quantities of Ammunition are carried from Doway to Mons and Tournay, and abundance of Carts and Waggon are employ'd in fetching Palisadoes for those two Places. The King of France has promis'd the Elector of Bavaria a Reinforcement of Troops, which are to be detach'd from those intended for Italy; but that Elector's March to Germany is quite laid aside, the French Court being disappointed of the Diversion they hop'd for on that side.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated March 19.

Liege, March 15. The Advices from the Enemy's Frontiers import, that the Duke of Vendome is not expected from Court, till he hears the Duke of Marlborough is come over from England. In the mean time the Enemy apply themselves diligently to the adding of new Fortifications to such Places as they judge to lye most expos'd to the first Attempts of the Allies; and the Elector of Bavaria has caus'd Part of his best Effects to be remov'd from Mons to Valenciennes, as to a Place of greater Security. That General gives out, that he will post himself so well behind the Haine and the new Lines, with his Army, which is to be reinforc'd by 20 Battallions and as many Squadrons of the Forces design'd for Italy, that it shall be found impracticable to attack him. The Scarcity of Money continues to be very great among the Enemy's Officers, so that they cannot fill up their Companies.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Mar. 17.

Ghent, Mar. 13. The Jubile appointed by the Pope, for imploring Peace from Heaven among Christian Potentates, was began here to Day, and is to continue till the 28th Instant inclusive. Proclamation has been made here by Sound of Trumpet, to invite all those who have Cellars or other Rooms to hire for laying up Stores of Corn, to repair to the Stadhouse, where a good Rent shall be offer'd them. 'Tis rumour'd a Magazine for a great Army will be provided here with all Expedition; and and many Ovens built for baking Bread. Our Garrison, consisting of the English Troops, prepare for the Campaign.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Mar. 19.

Ghent, Mar. 16. To Day a Placart was publish'd here, commanding all Natives of France that are settled here, to depart the Town. All the Convents have been view'd, to see what Room there is in them for laying up Corn: And 'tis said the Troops of the Allies will form a Camp in a little Time. New Mounting and other Necessaries are begun to be distributed to our Garrison.

Brussels, Mar. 17. Great Quantities of Oats and Hay are still brought hither by Water daily, and so many Recruits for filling up the Regiments quarter'd here, are already arriv'd, that our Garrison is almost fully complear. A Resolution is taken to raise again the old Lines round this Place, and Men will speedily be set to work upon them. The French Inhabitants of this Town are under great Apprehension, that the Placart forbidding of all their Nation to depart these Provinces, will soon be publish'd here, as it has been already in other Places. Mr. Stepney and the States Deputies, are expected here to Night or to Morrow.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated Mar. 18.

Dunkirk, Mar. 15. The Squadron that is sitting out here, to be commanded by M. de Fourbin, is augmented to 9 Men of War and 6 Frigates, and will put to Sea before the End of this Month.
